BLANKA ZIZKA
DIRECTOR
Blanka Zizka has been Artistic Director of The Wilma Theater since 1981. In 2011 Blanka refocused the Wilma’s energy on developing practices and programs for local theater artists to create working conditions that support creativity through continuity and experimentation. Two seasons ago she founded the Wilma HotHouse Company. At the Wilma, she has directed over 70 plays and musicals. Most recently, Blanka directed the world premiere of Christopher Chen’s Passage, her play Adapt!, Andrew Bovell’s When The Rain Stops Falling, Tom Stoppard’s U.S. premiere of The Hard Problem, Rosencrantz & Guildenstern Are Dead, Hamlet, Paula Vogel’s world premiere Don Juan Comes Home from Iraq, Richard Bean’s Under the Whaleback, Tony Kushner’s Angels in America, Tadeusz Słobodzianek’s Our Class, Sarah Ruhl’s In the Next Room, and Macbeth—which included an original score by Czech composer and percussionist Pavel Fajt. Her other favorite productions are Wajdi Mouawad’s Scorched, Tom Stoppard’s The Invention of Love and Rock ’n’ Roll, Sarah Ruhl’s Eurydice (which featured an original score by composer Toby Twining, now available from Cantaloupe Records), Brecht’s The Life of Galileo, Athol Fugard’s Coming Home and My Children! My Africa!, and Caryl Churchill’s Cloud 9. She collaborated closely with Dael Orlandersmith on her plays Raw Boys and Yellowman, which was co-produced by McCarter Theatre and the Wilma and performed at ACT Seattle, Long Wharf, and Manhattan Theatre Club. Blanka was honored to be selected into the 2017 Class of the Innovators Walk of Fame by the University Science Center, which spotlights local innovators. She is a recipient of the 2016 Vilcek Prize, which is awarded annually to immigrants who have made lasting contributions to American society through their extraordinary achievements in biomedical research and the arts and humanities. She received the Zelda Fichandler Award from the Stage Directors and Choreographers Foundation in 2011, which recognizes individuals who are transforming the national arts landscape with their unique and creative work in the American regional theatre, and she was a Fellow at the 2015 Sundance Institute/LUMA Foundation Theatre Directors Retreat.

PATRESHETARLINI ADAMS (RESIDENT STAGE MANAGER/AEA) has been the stage manager at The Wilma Theater since the theater made its home on the Avenue of the Arts in 1996. “Pat” is celebrating season #23 at the fabulous Wilma! Her career has included 7 seasons as stage manager at the Tony Award-winning Crossroads Theatre in New Brunswick, NJ and, in past years, Pat has worked the National Black Arts Festival in Atlanta, GA and the National Black Theater Festival in Winston-Salem, NC. She has also found herself traveling the world with critically-acclaimed dance company Noche Flamenca! Most recently, she is using all her free time to spoil her grandsons, Isaiah and Elijah. God Is Good!

WALTER BILDERBACK (DRAMATURG/LITERARY MANAGER) has been the Dramaturg/Literary Manager at The Wilma Theater since 2004. During that time he’s helped select seasons and has worked on the vast majority of the plays produced in that time. Particular recent favorites include Our Class, Don Juan Comes Home From Iraq, Hamlet, When the Rain Stops Falling, and Blood Wedding. Before coming to Philadelphia, Walter worked for numerous theaters across the country, including Center Stage, La Jolla Playhouse, Alliance Theatre, Dallas Theater Center, and on Broadway. He’s read plays and sat on selection committees for many organizations, most recently the O’Neill and the Playwrights Center.

CLAYTON TEJADA (PRODUCTION MANAGER) is celebrating his 14th season at the Wilma, serving the first seven as Technical Director. Clayton started his professional career as an Apprentice at Arden Theatre, and then worked there for several years as Stage Supervisor. Before coming to the Wilma, he worked as a freelance Technical Director or Production Manager for 1812 Productions, Mum Puppettheatre, Lantern Theater, and Azuka Theatre. Clayton is a graduate of the Theater Arts program at The University of Puget Sound. He is proud to make Philadelphia his professional and artistic home. Thanks and love to his sweet Kate, and their boys Alex and Gabriel.
JAMES HASKINS (MANAGING DIRECTOR) is now in his thirteenth season in partnership with Blanka Zizka, the Board of Directors, and staff to advance the mission of The Wilma Theater. James began his work in theater administration at Circle Repertory Company, where he learned early on the value and resonance of an artist-centered approach to running a theater company. He went on to work with a variety of theaters in New York and Seattle as an actor, director, and administrator. Upon moving to Philadelphia, James worked as Managing Director of InterAct Theatre Company and then Executive Director of the Theatre Alliance of Greater Philadelphia before coming to the Wilma. As a theater artist, he is most proud of his directorial and dramaturgical work on the plays of his husband Michael Whistler. James holds an MFA from the University of Washington and a BA from The College of Wooster (Ohio), where he currently serves as President of his alumni class.

We asked HotHouse actor Lindsay Smiling to interview playwright James Ijames about Kill Move Paradise and being an artist in Philadelphia. Lindsay Smiling plays Isa in the Wilma Production of Kill Move Paradise and also acted in James Ijames’ play Moon Man Walk, which was produced by Orbiter 3 in 2015.

Lindsay Smiling: You recently wrote that “the Wilma has had a tremendous impact on my work as a playwright” and that your first full length play was written in the dressing room while you were in the Wilma’s production of Angels in America. How do you think your relationship with the Wilma has influenced your writing?

James Ijames: Everything I’ve ever seen at the Wilma whether I loved it or not has always felt both wild and precise. These sort of became my guiding principles as a writer. Be wild and precise. That production of Angels in America in particular was inspiring because Blanka created a whole world really out of blank white emptiness. That set! It was like the Wild West and it forced everyone in the cast to engage in these large performances. When I sit down to write I’m aiming for that level of scale. Huge. But I’m also tethered to the ground by the desire for the world I write to feel precise and to make sense. It doesn’t always have to make sense to everybody but the hope as I work is that it will connect and move people.

You’re very familiar with the Wilma HotHouse, and have been commissioned to write a play for us. How do you think the Wilma’s process will elevate Kill Move Paradise?

James Ijames: The play is incredibly physically demanding. The characters are caught in a space that I’ve come to think of as like the bardo [in Tibetan Buddhism, a transitional or liminal space between death and rebirth]. The HotHouse practice meets this kind of writing really beautifully because the play is open. Right? I think the play is more a gesture than an instruction manual. The HotHouse approach is playful and exploratory and then it rises down to something quite precise and I believe Kill Move Paradise will benefit from this.
You quote Jonathan Lethem’s The Fortress of Solitude: “At what age is a black boy when he learns he’s scary?” The idea that my skin alone is something society fears certainly resonates with me as I’m sure it does with many people of color. Can you talk about how you are challenging the audience to confront this fear in Kill Move Paradise?

You remember that Samuel Jackson movie A Time To Kill? A young black girl is brutally beaten and raped by a group of Confederate flag-wearing white men. They get acquitted. Sam Jackson shoots them in the lobby of the courthouse. The rest of the movie is about Sam Jackson’s trial. His lawyer is the “Alright alright alright” guy that does those car commercials. Skip to the end of the movie Mr. Alright Alright Alright is doing his closing argument. He describes in graphic detail what this young girl has gone through. And then at the end he says to the jurors. “Now…Imagine she’s white.”

Now. Even as a kid I was like “Huh?” Why is that necessary for compassion or empathy? Are only white people offered this piece of human kindness?

Fast forward to the beginning of the 21st century and black people are being killed left and right by vigilantes, by law enforcement who say things like “I was scared for my life” when talking about teenage boys. And that thought kept running through my mind, “Now…Imagine she’s white.”

Fast forward to me sitting down to write Kill Move Paradise and trying to create a space in which the humanity of the people on stage is undeniable. These characters embody all the ways in which we try to be human. They are jealous, they are kind, they maternal and paternal, they are pushed physically to the edge of something and then fall. You can’t deny their humanity. And they are all black. So the audience has to see them as they are. Imagining the white version of them is not an option.
CAFE CHATS

We know you want to unpack the show, hang out with friends, maybe have drinks? Join us for Kill Move Paradise Cafe Chats, post-show conversations on issues raised in the play. Pick up a coaster at the Good Karma Café counter or the box office for thoughtful conversation starters to get you and your friends thinking and talking about Kill Move Paradise. Read the guidelines below to help ensure a safe welcoming environment for everyone.

COASTER QUESTIONS

1. Why in the white imagination are black males aged far beyond what is natural?
2. How did you feel when the characters cast you as representatives of America?
3. How did your participation in playing the roles of the family sitcom studio audience/the other side of a police lineup affect the characters?
4. What does Black Lives Matter mean to you?
5. Why is this play set in the afterlife?

GUIDELINES

By Entering into these conversations, you agree to the following:

1. You will take responsibility for what you say, and how it is received. The impact of our words and actions is more important than what we meant.
2. You will speak from your own experience, and respect the experiences of others. Don’t try to minimalize, contextualize, or edit someone else’s experience (Example: don’t say “we’re all having these thoughts,” say “I’m having these thoughts”).
3. An opinion does not have the weight of lived experience. Opinions can be wrong.
4. You will invite someone into a conversation only when you are ready to listen. Please leave space for valid reactions to conversations about pain and trauma.
5. These conversations are hard. Leaving a conversation or not accepting an invitation to talk is an acceptable option!
6. It’s ok (and good) to be uncomfortable. Vulnerability inspires change.

PRIVATE PEACEFUL

OCT 11-13

From the writer of Broadway’s War Horse, this funny yet heart-breaking one-man play tours the U.S. for the first time, sharing the story of a young soldier reminiscing on his short but wonderful life before he faces a firing squad at dawn.

SPECTRUM DANCE THEATER

A Rap on Race

OCT 12-13

In the Philadelphia debut of Spectrum Dance Theater, A Rap on Race combines historic text with dance and music to explore the complexities of talking about race, at a time when that conversation is as necessary as ever.

The 18/19 dance series is presented by Annenberg Center Live and NextMove Dance.
